

Blackhaw Viburnum

Iowa Native

(Viburnum prunifolium)

Flowering Shrub

12' - 15' High

6' - 12' Spread

Fast Growth

Full Sun/Part Shade

Various Soils

Round Shape

The Blackhaw Viburnum is most commonly grown as a large shrub but can be pruned into a graceful, multi-stemmed tree. It shows off white flowers in late spring and fruits in summer that ripen to dark blue. It is quite tolerant of drought once established and is right at home in native plant gardens. The Blackhaw Viburnum offers gorgeous purple-red fall color. It is great for hedging material or even as a specimen plant. (Zones 3 - 9)
