The Bur Oak is the State tree of Iowa, and for good reason. With a majestic shape and huge crown this tree easily becomes the center of attention. The unique grooved bark and good branch structure add to the attractiveness of this tree. The massive size of this oak makes it a great choice for big open areas. The Bur Oak also produces a fringed looking acorn that adds to its natural beauty, however it may take up to 35 years before they produce these acorns. Bur Oaks have good drought tolerance when established as well. (Zones 3 - 8)
