The Diabolo Ninebark is prized for its four-season interest. White, button-like blooms appear in spring, presenting a showy display that's sure to draw butterflies and hummingbirds. In fall, your Ninebark will further captivate the wildlife with red capsules that are its fruit. Winter reveals your shrub's origins when its exfoliating bark exposes the reddish-brown layers underneath. Although all of the seasons bring interest the 4-inch long, lobed leaves are an elegant deep purple throughout the summer, and are sure to stand out in your landscape. (Zones 2 - 7)
