Well Drained Soils

Indian Grass is an Iowa native prairie grass. This cultivar called 'Indian Steel' is more blue in color than straight Indian Grass. The bulk of the bluish green foliage reach around 3 feet tall. Tan panicle blooms arise up to 5 feet high in late summer, and sway in the breeze. This clump-forming grass is a good choice for poor, dry soils. The roots run deep and will help to improve soil structure. In the fall the blades of grass turn tones of red and tan. (Zones 4 - 9)
